Maria Samuelu Donovan Bixley Epi Swan New Zealand

The book, "Lalaga Pekapeka: Ko He Tala Kuki Ailani Mai Niu Hila" by Maria Samuelu Donovan Bixley Epi Swan New Zealand, is a story about Moe and her sisters who create flax porotaka windmills. Their grandfather shows them how to make these small flax porotaka windmills like the ones he used to play. The book teaches the children about the importance of family and tradition.

The book is published by Books by Maria Samuelu Donovan Bixley Epi Swan, and it is available in several editions. The ISBN for the book is 978-0790313030. Chegg carries several editions of the book, and used and new rentals are available. The Ministry of Education in New Zealand provides textbooks with ISBNs 0790313030 and 0790313030. The book is also available in ebook format.

The book is recommended for children aged 9-12 and covers topics such as family, tradition, and the importance of learning. The book includes colorful illustrations and engaging text to make learning fun and enjoyable.

The book is a great resource for educators and parents who want to support children's learning and development. The Ministry of Education recommends the book for its diverse content and engaging style. The book is available in multiple formats, including hardcover, paperback, and ebook formats.

In summary, "Lalaga Pekapeka: Ko He Tala Kuki Ailani Mai Niu Hila" is a fantastic book for children who are curious about Samoan culture and tradition. The book is available in multiple formats and is highly recommended by the Ministry of Education in New Zealand.